Questions	Yes	No	Comments
My preceptor gives me enough verbal encouragement
Her criticisms are expressed tactfully
She gives appropriate opportunities for hands on experience
She does not criticize me in front of clients
She gives me thorough and honest critique after each birth
Both student and preceptor make a good effort to discuss every birth within one week
She spends enough time discussing prenatal and postnatal visits
She asks for my opinion
There is the right amount of work in the practice for the number of apprentices
She stands back and gives me a chance to do things on my own when appropriate
She assesses my learning and provides feedback
We can easily discuss our personal lives and how they might affect our work
She is committed to our birth practice and to our student midwife/preceptor relationship
She gives detailed instructions before expecting me to know how to do something
She is emotionally supportive of me
She fills out/signs clinical training credit paper work in a timely manner
